WHERE THEY PLAY TO-DAY. Richmond at Danville. Norfolk at Lynchburg. Petersburg at Roanoke.

Danville, Va., May 22.—With Richmond leading by one run until the eighth inning, Danville took a brace and won from the visitors 6 to 5, in one of the most interesting games of the season. Smith, in the eighth, contributed to the victory with a homer over the gas sign, scoring two men ahead of him.

The fans showed their appreciation by presenting him with a purse.

Richmond took the lead in the initial inning, pushing two runs across the rubber.

Danville made one in the second. The visitors added two more in the hinth,

In the fourth Kaufman walked, Morgan reached first, and Kaufman scored on Laughlin's hit to right.

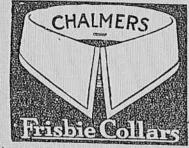

In the fifth Frye walked, went to second on a hit by Cooper. Dugan reached the initial sack, filling the bags, and Frye scored on Brady's out at first.

In the eighth the fans were set wild. mond leading by one run until the

In the eighth the fans were set wild with delight when Kaufman reached first on a single to right centre, Morgan beat out a bunt, and Smith poked over the gas sign in centre for a homer, clearing the bases.

Pierce started in for Richmond, but was relieved in the earlier stages of the name, and was replaced by Mer-

The game was of the kind that keeps a crowd on tiptoe throughout, and while the box score makes it took like it was William and Mary all through the nine innings, there were just enough times when the Ashlanders looked dangerous. William and Mary played the kind of ball that wins, fielding faultlessly and touching up Blanton at a lively clip. While Randolph-Macon, and Ives particularly, have a formidable error score, most of the misplays were of a pardonable mature. Ives picked up four screeching grass-cutters and then heaved them wildly to Rowe.

While the errors of these two men contributed largely to the defeat of Randolph-Macon, the whole Yellow Jacket team seemed to have a bad case of butter fingers, and the errors of omission were almost as numerous, and more costly, than the errors of commission on the other hand, the Williamsburgers seemed to be wherever the ball was hit, and three with
